SCHOOL OF AMERICAN ARCHAEOLOGY

THE SCHOOL OF AMERICAN ARCHAEOLOGY was founded by the Archaeological Institute of America in 1907, to conduct the researches of the Institute in the American field, direct the expeditions of the branch Societies, and afford opportunities for field work and training to students of archaeology and ethnology. For the present a Field School only is to be maintained. Expeditions for the excavation of ancient American ruins take the field during the year 1908 on the following dates: In Utah, June 1st; in Colorado, June 15th; in New Mexico, August 15th; in Central America, December 1st. Students of archaeology and ethnology will be admitted to an expedition on satisfying the Director as to qualifications for the work proposed. Terms of admission will be furnished on application.

The Central American Fellowship with a stipend of $600 is awarded annually. Other Fellowships are to be established as soon as funds are secured for their maintenance. The School desires to coöperate in archaeological research with universities and scientific organizations, both home and foreign, and invites correspondence with reference to such collaboration in either field or archive work in American subjects. Coöperative arrangements have already been made with a number of institutions.

For further information, address the Director,

Mr. EDGAR L. HEWETT,

Washington, D.C.

AMERICAN SCHOOL AT ATHENS

THE AMERICAN SCHOOL OF CLASSICAL STUDIES AT ATHENS was founded by the Archaeological Institute of America, in 1881, and is supported by the coöperation of leading American Universities and Colleges. No charge for tuition is made to graduates of the supporting institutions; other students are required to pay a fee of $25 per annum for tuition and library privileges. Two Fellowships, with a stipend of $600 each, are awarded on examination; the examinations in 1908 (for the Fellowships of 1908-1909) will be held on March 12-14. A Fellowship in Architecture also, with a stipend of $1000, will be maintained for the next three years by the Carnegie Institution of Washington. The library of the School contains more than 4000 carefully selected volumes.

The Director of the School is Mr. B. H. HILL; the Secretary, Mr. L. D. CASKEY. In 1907-1908 the annual professorship is held by Professor E. B. CLAPP, of the University of California. He will be succeeded in 1908-1909 by Professor WILLIAM K. PRENTICE, of Princeton University; and in 1909-1910 by Professor GEORGE H. CHASE, of Harvard University.

AMERICAN SCHOOL IN ROME

THE AMERICAN SCHOOL OF CLASSICAL STUDIES IN ROME (Via Vicenza, 5) was founded in 1895 by the Archaeological Institute of America, and is affiliated within and with the American School at Athens. It offers to graduates in Arts of American Colleges, and, under exceptional circumstances, to other persons of marked qualifications, instruction and assistance in advanced classical and archaeological studies. Regular courses of lectures and practical exercises, chiefly in the field or in the museums, are given by the resident American instructors and by distinguished foreign specialists. Liberal opportunities for study are afforded in the great museums and libraries. Archaeological excursions are arranged for and conducted. The Director of the School is Professor JESSE BENEDICT CARTER. The Professor of Latin for 1908-1909 is Professor WALTER DENNISON, of the University of Michigan.

Tuition is free to graduates of "coöperating colleges." One or more Fellowships in Classical Archaeology, each of $600, and usually one in Christian Archaeology, of $500, are awarded annually on competitive examination, which (for the Fellowships of 1908-1909) will be held on March 9-11, 1908. Two Research Fellowships also, each of $800, have been established by the Carnegie Institution, which will be awarded for the year 1908-1909.
